

Declaration of Originality

ATTENTION: Fill in the boxes below and, in the last, check the desired option. Scan or photograph the completed form and send it with the submission of this Term.

By this Declaration of Originality and in the best form of the Law, I (and other authors - if, in fact, there is more than one author, inform the names) author of the article entitled (include all) to be submitted to the Revista Internacional de Extensão da Unicamp, edited every six months by UNICAMP's Dean of Extension and Culture, I declare for due purposes that the mentioned article:

- a) has not been published, in whole or in part, in another publication (print or electronic) of a scientific or other nature;
- b) was not simultaneously submitted to another publication (printed or electronic), scientific or non-scientific;
- c) will not be submitted, partially or in full, to the evaluation of another publication, scientific or not, in the six months following the sending of the Notification of Discharge;
- d) is not linked to another publication (printed or electronic), whether scientific or not, by any form of copyright protection;
- e) does not constitute a short version of an undergraduate or postgraduate monograph, course conclusion work, master's dissertation, doctoral thesis, or similar;
- f) is written in the format of an article for a journal and in accordance with the Guidelines for Authors available on the journal's website.
- g) It is agreed that the Journal will disseminate the accepted article, according to the dictates of the Open File Philosophy.

I also assure you that the work is original and does not contain any form of plagiarism. Likewise, I assume responsibility for the use of third party texts and images, when such use requires authorization.

Thus, I authorize my mentioned-above article:

- a) to be published free of charge in the most convenient edition of the Journal;
- b) to be submitted to the standardization rules adopted by the Journal;
- c) has its content exposed on the internet.

By ticking yes in this Term, I confirm that I am aware of the terms established here and accept the conditions established in the Guidelines for Authors on the website of Unicamp's Revista Internacional de Extensão.

Yes

No